

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY MAIN BRANCH

Presents

About the Film

A Special Documentary Screening with Director Scott Kirschenbaum

In honor of World Alzheimer's Month, PBS' Emmy award-winning series Independent Lens will offer a special screening of this acclaimed documentary.

A total immersion into the fragmented day-to-day experience of mental illness, You're Looking at Me Like I Live Here and I Don't is the first documentary filmed exclusively in a unit specifically for care of those with Alzheimer's & other dementias, and the first told from the perspective of someone suffering from Alzheimer's disease. It is a touching account of Lee Gorewitz's life, her penetrating ruminations and charismatic vitality. Here is the journey of a woman who will not let us forget her – even as she struggles to remember herself.

The screening will be followed by a panel discussion exploring the intersection of medical research in the field, the arts, social services, and the quality of life of individuals living with Alzheimer's disease and other dementia.

When

Thursday, September 19th, 2013 at 3:30 PM

Where

Stephen A. Schwarzman Building / South Court Auditorium

Fifth Avenue at 42nd Street New York, NY 10018-2788

The screening is free and open to the public.

/ yourelooking

@ yourelooking

Guests

Moderator: Ben Vershbow, Manager, NYPL Labs

Panelists include: Lou-Ellen Barkan, President & CEO, Alzheimer's Association/New York City Chapter; Alison Willmore, TV Editor, Indiewire; James E. Galvin, M.D., M.P.H., lead researcher, New York University Langone School of Medicine; and filmmaker Scott Kirschenbaum.